DESERT BOOM IN KANSAS

How a Wagon Full of Money Was Taken From East-

A GET-RICH-QUICK SCHEME

Turns Up After Thirty Years to Complicate the State Political Campaign.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

TOPEKA, KAN., October 25.-A queer story of early financiering in Kansas has revived by a libel suit brought by three State officers against a newspaper publisher of Topeka.

The newspaper recently printed a story which in effect charged Secretary of State Burrows, State Superintendent Dayhoff and Attorney-General Coleman with conniving with a bond agent to in-State school funds controlled by them in Communche county bonds-a purchase which, as the newspaper said, indicated a reckess disregard for the safety of the funds. The three men, being non inces on the Republican ticket for re-election, sued the newspaper for $15,000 damages. The reply of the newspaper has just been fied, and it brings out a unique chapter in get-rich-quick schemes thirty chapter in gentral control of Kansas, in a generous mood, created Sammer, Harper, Commone, Barbour and other countes out of the uninhabited section of the State, and defined their boundaries. Commone country is on the southern border, adjoining the Indian Territory, and a little west of the canter line.

Lac all over that section, and Comanche was uninhabited save by occasional marauding bants of indians.

In the fall of 1873, as was afterward established by legislative investigation, A. J. Mowry and four or five other men started in a wagon from Hutchinson, the nearest point on a railroad, to Comanche county, swent of the other men city directory of St. Joseph, Mo., and a scheme for corraling a pie of boodle. The scheme was to organize the county, lesue bonds, sell them and divide the proceeds.

Under the law it was necessary that the county be shown to have 250 householders to entitle it troganization. As soon as the party arrived the members proceeded to take the census of the county by writing in a book names they found in the St. Joseph directory. This census they sent to Topeka, and in due time they received onical sanction to proceed with their organization.

A prefended county election was held, at which Mowry was elected a member of the Legislature, James Hopkins county school superintendent, and W. Allen county cirk. As a matter of fact, there was no one in the county limits but the wigon-load of Hutchinson men. At the pie ended election the countys of the county sended election the county superintended election the county superintend

Meanwhile an exodus had begun from an ecounty. At present there are not tore than 1780 inhab tants in it, and lesse have the hardest task of their lives ying not to accumulate enough property make the bonds valuable. By a commisse effected in 1890 the bond issue as reduced to $123,000, a sum much less and the amount of the judgment, with terest and costs. Mowry and his confreres, finding bond suning an easy road to wealth, then rined two school districts, and issued we bonds of 1,000 each, which they sold to be State Board of Educational Lands of Fund Funds for $575.

formed two senool districts, and issued two bonds of 1,09 each, which they soid to the State Board of Educational Lands and Funds for $35.

Mowry's vanity and desire for political prominence, however, were his undo ng. When the Legislature met at Topeka in January, 1874, he appeared with his credentials and obtained a seat as the member from Comanche. Soon afterward the story of the bond deal became known and a resolution of inquiry was adopted. The committee reported that Mowry was not entitled to a seat, and he left town.

A special season of the Legislature met in September of 1875, and the Attorney-General was instructed to investigate the story. He visited the county, found no body living there, and learned that nobody ever had resided there for long. The final paragraph of his report reads:

As Marius seat amid the ruins of Carthage and wept, I camped upon the townsite of Smallwood (named after one of the State ofheers who bought the school bonds), the county seat, and feasted upon wild turkey with no (white) man to molest or make me afraid. In Smallwood there are two log cabins, both deserted, of course, without doors, windows, saskes or blinds. About a mile off is another deserted ranch, and these compose the houses of the householders of the county. In this county there is not an acre of land or a dollar's worth of property subject to taxation. Its sole inhabitants are the Cheyennes and the coyote, the wolf and the Arapahoes, and its organization is and always was a fraud.

When the Legislature of 1876 convened Mowry turned up 2gan as a member, this time from Doniphan county. Indignant members had a committee appointed to investigate his conduct in Comanche county, and he was expelled. The committee's report shows that, not having enough men in the party to effect an organization of the two school districts, fight, the blank school honds being tured by him from the State Superintedent. A criminal proceeding was investined by the montest the conference of the county and he was expelled. The committee ap

NEW DOG LAW.

The First Case of Arrest Lands the Purloiner in the Lock-Up.

the Purloiner in the Lock-Up.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

CHASE CITY, Oct. 2s.—The first cose of the larceny of a dog under the new law was before the Mayor yesterday, A negro training went to the yard of Mr. W.

D. Norvell and carried away a valuable dog in the daytime. The owner pursued the thief and overtook him as miles distant and brought man and dog back to town. The dog had been assessed and tax paid. The man confessed and expected to sell the dog. A fine was imposed of five dollars, which he could not pay, and he was confined in the lock-up. There hasn't been a political speech made here during the campaign, and no need for any, as practically all are for Parker and Dayls.

The public sechool here is overflowing with pupils and additional room and trackers will have to be provided.

BIG DAY POLITICALLY. Shaw and Daniel in Wytheville.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

WYPHEVILLE, VA., Oct. 22.—Saturday will be quite a day in the political history of Wytheville county, as both parties wid be represented by men of large callier. The Republicans will have Hon. Leslie M. Shaw to address them in the morning, and the Democrats will have Hon, John W. Daniel and Hon. James W. Marshall to speak to them at night. The apathy in both of the parties is passing away as the day for casting the balvit approaches, and on the part of the Democrats there is a marked increase of in-

The speeches of Hon. L. S. Kelley, Richmond, who has been canvassing the county, have had a telling effect. Everywhere he was greeted with large and apprecative audiences, who were thoroughly aroused by his clear and convincing arguments in favor of Democratic principles, and his withering arraignment of the policies of the Republicans and the high handed actions of the present Executive.

the senson's opening have kept the mulce up of the tenm unsettled. In the game against the Red Skins the line up will be changed considerably. The men w., begin the game as follows:

A new man is Murphy at guard, who weighs 240. Spear is out again after a broken hand, and Beckett has shown wanderful improvement. These three men strengthen Virginia's weak points.

Hundley & Hostins's mill Monday last.
The wheel was so choked that it could not turn, and it required soveral hours to remove the tangled and twisted mass.
Some of them were several feet long, and as large as a man's arm. How they got there is a mystery, They could have come from the creek below or from the

MILL RAISES WAGES

Restored to Old Figure Before the Price of Cotton Went Soaring.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

LYNCHBUIG, VA., Oct. 23.—The employes of the Lynchburg Cotton Mill are elated over the fact that they have been notified that beginning, next week their wages will be restored to the same figures as they were previous to last Pebruary, when by reusen of the high price of cotton and the low price of goods they were reduced ten per cent. Over 600 employes are affected, and this news coming at the beginning of the cold weather is most welcome to all.

In addition to this increase of wages it should be stated that has February, when the reduction was made in wag.s, the amount of rents of the companys houses were cut down 25 per cent. And now, while the wages have been restored, the rents remain unchanged, or still 21 per cent, less than they were this unit
